TIED

OF LIFE AND DESPONDENT
FRANK BOYLES

KILLED HIMSELF WITH ARSENIC
TUESDAY MORNING.

THE SUICIDE WAS DELIBERATE.

When Asked Why He Had Swallowed
Poison the Suffering Man Answered, "O, Trouble."

Tired of life, despondent over domestic troubles of his own making, and nerved to the rash act by drink, Frank Boyles, aged 35 years, committed suicide by taking arsenic, at an early hour this morning.

For the past few weeks Boyles had been employed at the Everett glass works, and continued until last Saturday night. He did not go to work Monday, and was about town drinking considerably. At about midnight he went to the place where he was rooming, Mrs. Anna Marsh's, 159 East Main street, and was heard to go to his room. Afterwards he came down stairs and got a glass of water from the kitchen table, and returned to his room. Mrs. Marsh did not think anything of the matter, as he had been suffering with a cold for several days, and she supposed he was taking some medicine to relieve that. Some of the roomers heard him later in the night and about five o'clock, Mrs. Marsh was aroused and went to his room, where she found him in terrible agony. She asked him if he was sick, and he replied in the affirmative, requesting that she send for a doctor, which was done. Dr. J. N. Stone responding promptly. While waiting for the doctor Mrs. Marsh did what she could for the sick man, who told her that he had taken poison. She asked him what he had done that for, and he replied: "O, trouble." The physician soon arrived and administered antidotes but the poison had done its deadly work, and at 7:30 o'clock he died in great agony.

It is not known how much of the poison Boyles swallowed, but Dr. Stone said that the amount remaining in the glass was enough to kill several men.

Bowers & Bradley's ambulance was called and the body was removed to their undertaking establishment, where it was viewed by Coroner Scott J. Evans, who will hold an inquest later.

Mrs. Marsh, the landlady, says that Boyles had been staying at her house for about two weeks.

The suicide was the son of the late James Boyles, and was employed as a teamster and laborer about livery stables. He was married and his wife, with her two children by a former husband, lives at the rear of 387 Eastern avenue. For two years she has not lived with her husband. When informed of her husband's death, and the manner of it, she evinced no surprise, nor any deep feeling. From what she says there is no room to doubt that Boyles deliberately planned and carried out the manner of his self-destruction. She says that on frequent occasions he would annoy her with his pleadings to come back and live with him, which she would not do. On last Saturday he came to her house, and after renewing his entreaties receiving the same replies, he threatened to kill her, and himself. He paid no attention to these oft repeated threats, and he left the house, returning Monday night. He was intoxicated, and being refused admittance, broke open the door. After some words he left her, saying that he would kill himself, and in the light of subsequent events, his mind was fully made up at that time.

Mrs. Langdon Death.

Mrs. D. E. Langdon died Tuesday morning at her home in Pittsburg, after an illness of ten days with pneumonia, aged 49 years.

For many years Mrs. Langdon was a resident of Union Station, this county, removing to Pittsburg twelve years ago. Besides her husband, one sister, Mrs. Sarah S. Hand of this city, survives. The remains arrive in Newark Wednesday. The funeral will take place from the home of Mr. John Hand, 80 Dewey avenue, Thursday afternoon, interment in Cedar Hill cemetery.

DIED

WITHOUT REVEALING CAUSE OF INJURY.

WESLEY WILSON, THE YOUNG B.
& O. BRAKEMAN,

DIDN'T REGAIN CONSCIOUSNESS.

Young Widow With Four Little Children, are Left.—Burial at Hunter, O., Wednesday.

Without ever regaining consciousness, or ever speaking a word to throw any light upon how he met his injuries since last Friday morning, Wesley Wilson, aged 27 years, the B. & O. brakeman who was found under the Pan Handle bridge in an unconscious condition, died at his home, 93 South Second street at 10:30 o'clock, Monday night.

The deceased leaves a young wife and four small children. Short funeral services will be held at the home of Rev. H. Newton Miller, of the Fourth Street Church of Christ, and at 6:30 Wednesday morning the remains will be shipped to Hunter, five miles south of Bethesda, for interment. It will probably never be known how Wilson received his injuries. He was found on Friday morning under the Pan Handle railroad bridge in East Newark, with a deep wound in the head. He never spoke after being discovered. Death was caused by meningitis.

Whether he fell off the bridge, was knocked off by a train, jumped off with suicidal intent, or was assaulted and known off is a mystery. He intended when he left home Thursday morning to get his January pay check, but this he did not do. There is an opinion that some one thought he had gotten it, and assaulted him with the intention to rob him.

HONEST HOBO

Walked a Mile Out of His Way to Restore Forty Cents to Its Rightful Owner.

Two German hoboes, who were on their way to Pittsburg were arrested and locked up at the City Prison last night.

They deposited a number of letters with the Marshal when they were locked up and this morning when they were discharged the papers were returned to them, and they went on their way. They had been gone nearly an hour when one of them returned and informed Marshal Vogelmeier that he had given them a letter which belonged to another man who had been arrested. He said that he had walked nearly a mile out of the city before he discovered the mistake and as the envelope contained forty cents, he thought it his duty to return it.

BOUND OVER.—Frank Thompson was this afternoon bound over to the Probate court in the sum of $50 by Squire Crilly. Thompson is charged with stealing stonemasons tools from G. W. Walker.

CHICAGO

GAVE ROYAL QUEST HEARTY
WELCOME

ON TO MILWAUKEE GOES PRINCE
HENRY THIS AFTERNOON.

HE VISITED BUSINESS DISTRICT

In Chicago During the Morning—Prince Cordially Received and Royally Entertained by Chicagoans.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 4.—Everything is in readiness to receive Prince Henry of Prussia when he arrives this afternoon. Following is the program for his entertainment during his six hours' stay:

4 p. m.—Arrival of royal train at the union depot.
4:15 a. m.—Line of twenty-five carriages starts over route escorted by troop A. W. N. G.

5 p. m.—Prince arrives at exposition building where reception will be held.
6:15 p. m.—Leaves exposition building for a drive up Grand avenue.

6:30 p. m.—Arrives at Plankinton Hotel to witness fire run.

7:30 p. m.—Banquet at Hotel Pfister.

9:30 p. m.—Leaves Hotel Pfister for union depot.

10 p. m.—Departure of Royal train for Chicago.

Chicago, March 4.—Bright skies and sharp, bracing temperature greeted Admiral Prince Henry, when he awoke this morning after a night of strenuous entertainment in Chicago. The distinguished visitor called for his coffee at 7:45 o'clock and an hour later breakfasted in his private apartments in the Auditorium hotel.

How to dispose of two hours' time that had not been provided for caused Chairman Eddy and the committee of entertainment considerable speculation. A suggestion had been made that the Prince visit the stock yards incognito, but later this was supplanted by an automobile ride with the famous Henri Fournier as chauffeur.

However this proposition did not meet with the views of the guest, who preferred to make a tour of the business district. At 9:45 the Prince, Mayor Harrison and others entered a carriage and were whirled away to the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank and other mercantile institutions.

Previous to his departure the Prince received little Barbara Osburn, ten years old. The little miss had been passed along the line by the detectives with a portrait of the Prince burned in basswood by her own hands. Beaming a smile of welcome, the royal guest extended a hand to his wee visitor, accepted the portrait, spoke of its worth and how he would treasure it dearly, and then in turn gave Barbara an autograph album and a parting salute.

Great crowds of people flanked every street leading to the Auditorium. The people began to gather about 8 o'clock although the scheduled hour for Prince Henry's appearance was 11:15 o'clock.

ACTS OF VANDALISM.

New York, March 4.—If vandalism continues among the visitors to the German imperial yacht, Hohenzollern, the sitting of the yacht will be ruined. Seven thousand persons have visited the yacht, and most of them have a souvenir. Costly tapestries have been ruined by cutting out bits, curtains and hangings have been spoiled by stealing golden tassels or pieces of silver fringe. Some of the ship's crockery, stamped with the imperial crest, is also missing.

CHICAGO'S ROYAL WELCOME.

Chicago, March 4.—Chicago was all ablaze with light for her imperial guest, Prince Henry, last night, and the Kaiser's brother received ovation after ovation. The streets were lined by thousands who cheered the German Admiral and a magnificent ball and banquet and reception by German citizens took place. No more flattering welcome could have been extended to any visitor.

Miss Olive Norman is slowly recovering from the grip.

David Richards is quite sick at his home on Granville street with grip.

U. V. L.—There will be no meeting of the U. V. L. ladies at Memorial hall tomorrow.

Shipping Bill Up.

Washington, March 4.—The Senate has begun consideration of the shipping bill—a measure to provide for ocean mail service between the United States and foreign ports and the common defense; to promote commerce and encourage deep sea fisheries. Mr. Fry (Me.) Chairman, made the opening statement supporting the bill in a two hour speech largely technical. "Trade cannot precede the mail" said he. "The mail must precede the trade."

THOMAS DEPOSITIONS

ATTORNEYS NOW IN COLUMBUS FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Harry Paul Says He Never Noticed Anything Wrong—The Alimony is to be Paid.

Columbus, O., March 4.—Depositions in the divorce proceedings brought by Harold Thomas of Chicago, against his wife, Ida Bland Thomas of Columbus, were taken in the office of Mrs. Thomas' local counsel, Herbert Bradley yesterday. Two witnesses were interrogated. The first was Mrs. Anna Stone who testified as to the character of the defendant.

The second was Harry Paul, who resides at 1217 East Long street, the first door west of the home of Mrs. Thomas and her mother, Mrs. Bland. Mr. Paul testified that Mrs. Thomas had been a lady as far as he had seen.

Mr. Thomas was represented by Attorney Frank Lynch, of Chicago, who is assisting Judge Sreman and Attorney J. L. Smith. Mrs. Thomas was represented by Mr. Bradley and Mr. Thomas Keating. Mr. Keating put the questions.

Mr. Paul said his side window was so located as to make it possible for him to see onto the porch of the Thomas home. If the door opened at night he could hear it, or if any one walked on the porch he could hear it. He frequently heard Mrs. Thomas and her mother alight from their carriage and walk into the house.

Mr. Paul was asked if he knew of Mrs. Thomas being called upon by men from Circleville during the Bankers' convention held in Columbus last October. He was also asked if he had any knowledge of Mrs. Thomas having visited places of questionable character, which were named. Mr. Paul denied knowing where the resorts in question were located.

Mr. Lynch says from a legal point of view nothing had been established. He said further that the alimony of $1,000 allowed by the Court would be paid, but not by Harold Thomas, as he is comparatively poor and disinherited. The money will be forthcoming from Mr. Thomas' friends, Mr. Lynch said.

The taking of depositions will continue until some 15 or 20 witnesses have given their testimony. The majority of it will be to prove that the character of Mrs. Thomas is not what it has been painted by Harold Thomas in his petition and supplemental bill.

The following witnesses were accordingly subpoenaed to appear before Notary A. C. Armstrong and give testimony in behalf of the defendant: Dr. L. M. Early, Dr. Ed Hatton, Ella Weaver, 1647 East Long street; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Paul, 1217 East Long; Alice Ford, 62 North Champlain avenue; Mr. and Mrs. John Greve, 1512 North Twenty-second; Fred Swenberger 1136 East Long; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Paul, 196 North Twenty-first; Mrs. Lulu Key, 47 West Goodale; Miss Hazel Marlow, Miss Mary Marlow, 232 North Twenty-third, and Miss Alice Stone.

Passed the House.

Columbus, O., March 4.—The House this morning passed a bill conferring police power on conductors of steam and interurban electric railways. Police power of conductors on city railways was stricken out. Even then nearly all labor representatives opposed the bill.

The Police Court.

Aaron Matheny, was arrested by Officers Zergiebel and Rinehart for drunkenness and insulting people on the street.

Four men were arrested by B. & O. Officers Wise and Stevens for loitering about the B. & O. yards.

The highest mountain peak in Colorado, is Sierra Blanca 14,432 feet high. Miss Ada Dean is quite sick.

GIRL

SOON WILL BE RESTORED TO HER MOTHER.

WAS KIDNAPED BY HER FATHER
YEARS AGO

AFTER THE DIVORCE SUIT ENDED

A Similar Suit Leads to Information of Her Whereabouts.—Lucille Wade Now Eighteen.

El Paso, Tex., March 4.—A story that reads just like a chapter from a French novel has just come to light. The chief character in the romance upon whom interest naturally centers in Lucille Wade, a beautiful girl now attending a boarding school at Bowling Green, Ky. Eleven years ago she was kidnaped from this city by relatives, and every effort of her mother to discover where she was kept in hiding proved futile until a short time ago, when her whereabouts were revealed in an entirely unexpected manner. The story is replete with interest from beginning to end.

In 1891 a suit for divorce was instituted in this city by Mrs. Blanche Wade, one of the noted beauties of the Southwest, whose marriage less than 10 years before had been one of the events of the season in which it occurred. Her husband was a young civil engineer, whose career promised to be a successful one, but it turned out otherwise.

After a bitter fight in the courts, which engendered much ill will among the relatives of the husband and wife, the court granted her a decree of divorce and custody of their two children, Lucille the older, and Blanche the baby. Only a short time elapsed until one day the husband disappeared and the elder girl with him. The mother was broken hearted, but after recovery from the first shock of grief at the separation was buoyed up by hope. She used every means in her power to find the child, expending a small fortune for that purpose, but all to no avail.

All manner of rumors reached her, but when traced to their sources they were found to be without foundation. One day word came that the little girl had been seen by an American tourist on the streets of Chihuahua, Mexico, in rags, begging for pennies. Her mother promptly secured the aid of influential Americans and the Governor of Chihuahua agreed to return the child to her. In the meantime the little girl was spirited away and all trace of her utterly lost. Some five years later she was reported to be in a convent in St. Louis, where she had been placed by her husband's relatives, but this story also proved baseless when investigated.

Three years ago the child's father died in Mexico, and his body was brought back to this country, after a long wrangle with the Mexican authorities, and buried here. It was then that the missing girl's mother lost all hope of ever seeing her child again. Believing that the secret of the child's whereabouts was locked in the bosom of the dead man and would never be revealed, she became resigned.

Now comes the strangest part of the story. Six months ago the sister of the dead man quarreled with her husband over an estate and sued for divorce, and the bitterness between them became intense. While the case was pending in the Courts she sought out the mother of the missing girl and told her the whole story of the kidnapping episode, withholding nothing. The little one had been taken from El Paso to Chihuahua and when about to be recovered the detectives of the husband removed the child to Kansas, where she had been reared at the home of another of his relatives.

At the age of 15 the little girl was placed in Potter College at Bowling Green, Ky., and is there at the present time. The overjoyed mother who had not seen her daughter for 11 years, was quick to communicate with the authorities of the Kentucky school and in reply received a long letter and the photograph of her daughter, now an exquisitely lovely girl of 18.

The paper currency of Spain now stands at 43 per cent loss on the gold standard.

She Will Live.

Lansing, Mich., March 4.—Miss Fern Leroy of Findlay, O., aged 22, took morphine and laudanum and then sent for her sweetheart. After a fight with death, the girl was brought out of danger. Her lover persuaded her that she did not really want to die.

KILLED WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Newark, N. J., March 4.—Charles Andrews, colored, killed his wife, set fire to her room and cut his throat and died here last night. They were both young and were married within a year.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD'S REPORT

Shows Astonishing Figures—Philip pine Tariff Bill—Street Car Strike at Norfolk.

New York, March 4.—The annual report of the Pennsylvania railroad made public today is interesting. Its gross earnings for the year 1901 were $198,626,878 about one-eighth of the total gross earnings of all the railroads in the United States. Its operating expenses aggregated $133,713,386. Its net earnings were $64,913,491, an increase of $10,175,414 over 1900. The net earnings of this great railroad exceeded by over $4,000,000 the total revenue of the United States in 1860. During 1901 the Pennsylvania spent $17,361,351 for construction, equipment and improvement on its approximately 8,000 miles of road. The pension roll of its employees now carries 1,105 names.

Washington, March 4.—The House today by a vote of 138 to 19 approved the conference report on the Philippine tariff bill which now becomes a law. It provides in the main a reduction of 25 per cent of the existing duties.

Washington, March 4.—The Senate committee on finance at the meeting today considered the bill passed by the House providing for the repeal of the war revenue taxes. No conclusion was reached, but from the drift of the conversation it is believed the committee will report the bill without change.

Columbus, O., March 4.—A bill was introduced in the House Monday fixing minimum rates of wages for school teachers, the scale being $2 to $3.35 a day according to certificates and experience.

Norfolk, March 4.—A few street cars are running today with heavy military guards to protect the few old employees and new men imported from Richmond and Baltimore. Military reinforcements have arrived from Emporia but all the soldiers seem to sympathize with the strikers. Mobs congregate on the street corners and hurl bricks under the cars as they pass, throwing the cars off the track. When this fails others will pull out fuse boxes. The worst is expected when the men sent from Knoxville arrive tonight.

San Francisco, March 4.—The transport Meade which sailed for Manila Saturday returned to port last night flying the yellow flag with smallpox and scarlet fever aboard. Eight hundred recruits and passengers are on board.

TEN

YEAR OLD LAD GETS AWAY

BUT YOUNGSTER WAS CAUGHT
AT GRANVILLE.

CECIL MAHARA CHILD'S NAME.

L. B. Stickle Missed His Horse and Getting a Tip, Telephoned to Granville.

Granville, O., March 4.—When the case of Everett against Baker was called in Squire Sayre's court today, the affidavit was held to be faulty and the action was dismissed. Mr. Everett went to Newark this afternoon to take further action.

Shortly before dark on Monday night Mr. L. B. Stickle, a teamster residing in the Halsey addition, drove over to the city, having some business to transact, and hitched his horse and buggy on Fourth street between Church and Locust streets. He shortly after returned to find his rig gone, and no trace of it. Making inquiries he soon ascertained that a small boy had been seen to unhitch the horse and drive away. Having learned that the boy was acquainted in Granville, he came to the conclusion that the boy had gone there and immediately telephoned to Marshal Shutz to be on the lookout for him.

He then secured another rig and accompanied by Mr. Homer Murran, drove to Granville, where he found the rig and the boy at Case's livery stable. The horse was found to be in very bad shape, having evidently been driven very hard. The rig, together with the boy, who proved to be Cecil Mahara, was brought to Newark, and the lad was turned over to the Marshal, who locked him up in the City Prison.

Tuesday morning Mr. Stickle filed an affidavit before Mayor Atherton, charging the Mahara boy with stealing the horse and buggy and also a set of harness, all of the value of $173.

When the boy was brought before the Mayor and questioned he did not seem to realize the enormity of the crime, and said that he saw the rig and just simply took it. The Mayor bound him over to the Probate Court in the sum of $100, and in default of bail he was transferred to the county jail.

Granville End of It.

Granville, O., March 4.—Cecil Mahara, the ten year old son of Mr. Albert Mahara of the Pratt & Montgomery planing mill, Newark, who created so much excitement here one night last week by attempting to steal a horse and buggy belonging to Mr. Chas. Twining of this place, is again in trouble. Shortly after 6 o'clock last night as Mr. Charles Wright of this place, was walking along Pearl street, in company with Edward Jones, he noticed a small boy driving a horse and buggy along the street, headed north. The horse was in a lather of sweat, and had the appearance of having been driven very hard. Mr. Wright stopped the boy and asked him whose horse he was driving and where he was going. The boy said that the horse belonged to his father who was going to work for the Rev. J. L. Wylie, who lives a short distance northwest of this place. Several other questions were asked the boy who gave unsatisfactory answers.

Mr. Wright and Mr. Jones came to the conclusion that everything was not right and took the rig and the boy to E. J. Case's livery stable.

In the meantime a telephone message had been received from Mr. L. B. Stickle, a teamster of Newark, making inquiries regarding the horse and buggy and he was told that the rig and boy were being held in Granville. In a short time Mr. Stickle accompanied by Mr. Homer Murran, arrived in the village and after identifying the horse and buggy, returned to Newark, taking the boy with them.

UNION LABEL
NO POLITICS
Shall Be Dragged Into the Water Works Question.
Unanimous Action of the City Council
Last Night to Keep the Mischief of Politics Out of It.

The Advocate's suggestion to the City Council to appoint a non-partisan committee for the purpose of preparing and presenting a statement to the voters on the water works proposition took practical form at the council meeting last night.

A resolution was offered and passed unanimously appointing such a committee, naming the following leading citizens:

EDWARD KIBLER, lawyer, Democrat.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, banker, Republican.

EDWARD THOMAS, manufacturer, Republican.

CHARLES C. METZ, business man, Democrat.

There were 13 members of the council in attendance—10 Democrats and 3 Republicans—and each and every one of them voted for the resolution with marked and pronounced emphasis.

Notwithstanding the remarkable article in the American-Tribune printed with double column conspicuousness last evening, making an effort to drag politics into the water works question, the 3 Republican councilmen manfully stood by their record and voted for the resolution with as much emphasis as the Democrats did. Let any citizen talk with them and he will find out that they have studied the question of city ownership of water works and that they have acted intelligently and conscientiously.

In contradistinction to the course the American-Tribune has chosen to adopt the Advocate takes the position that every member of the city council—Democrat and Republican alike—has acted honestly in every step of the proceedings thus far taken on this subject, and that they have acted in the full belief that they were doing the best thing for the city's interest.

The Advocate is not going to indulge in any exultation over this matter as a "victory" for the paper. The real truth is that the suggestion originated with several of our leading business men, three of whom are prominent Republicans.

Men of this character of both parties have expressed the hope and desire from the start that no political side issue should be dragged into the question, so that nothing should arise to interfere with the people voting intelligently upon it from a purely economic standpoint.

The Advocate's course in all the discussion of the subject that shall occur will be strictly non-partisan. If the American-Tribune continues the course marked out in its issue of yesterday of dragging politics into the subject, this paper will give it a complete monopoly of any such feature of the discussion.

EUROPE BUILDING NEW CANALS.

The way the leading European nations are entering into new canal projects makes it look absurd for us in this country to be talking of abandoning those we have. Both France and Austria are deep in the business, while Russia has in reserve a great scheme connecting the Baltic and the Black sea. The French government has pledged itself recently to a plan of canal building and port improvements which would involve an expenditure of $120,000,000. Four new canals are proposed, as follows: One to connect the northern coal fields of the Pas de Calais with Lorraine, to cost $26,000,000. Another running from the Loire to the Rhone, which will cost $24,000,000. The third, the northern canal, $12,000,000, and the fourth, the canal from Nantes to the Rhone, $18,000,000. The Austrian scheme is even more magnificent, calling as it does for the ultimate expenditure of $150,000,000. It provides for a network of canals in the empire, and is said to be replete with enormous engineering difficulties, but it is thought that the labor will be well repaid in results commercial and political.

A STRANGE DREAM

[Original.]

I was visiting a friend at his country place. He went to the city daily and left me to amuse myself. One morning I was strolling about when I came to a thin place in the hedge, leaving a passage. I passed through and stood looking at the beautiful grounds of an adjoining place. There was a summer house in one corner, covered with vines, which looked very tempting. I hesitated awhile; but, not seeing any one about, concluded to go there. Reaching the steps leading up to the entrance, I espied a lady lying asleep in a hammock. She was dressed in a becoming morning gown, trimmed with lace, and a little foot, peeping out from under her skirts, displayed a dainty slipper. She was ruddy as a peach and plump as a partridge. I couldn't apologize to one who was asleep. I stood looking at her irresolutely, thinking every moment that she would open her eyes, but she slept on. I gave a slight cough. It failed to awaken her.

I could have gone away and thus got out of the difficulty, but by this time I had no desire to do so. I rather felt inclined to stay there as a sort of protector, though what I was to protect her from except myself I did not know. I drew near and stood looking down at her. I could not see her eyes, for they were closed, but her mouth was exquisite. About her neck was a strip of black velvet upon which hung a locket. I stooped nearer to examine the trinket and caught the fragrance of her warm breath. Then—well, then I lost my head entirely. I forgot the audacity, stupidity, presumption, recklessness (there are not enough words in the dictionary to serve the purpose) of the action and, bending still lower, touched her lips lightly with mine.

There was a faint, convulsive movement. I was filled with horror, expecting to see her open her eyes. For a moment there was a slight movement at the corners of her mouth, followed by a muscular contraction of the brows, a breath of extra length; then she was as quiet as if her lips had not been desecrated.

By this time I had made up my mind that if I did not leave at once I would end by landing in jail, or deserve to land there, so I tiptoed out of the summer house and went through the hedge and back to the veranda, where I spent the rest of the morning between shuddering at what I had done and a remembrance of the kiss I had stolen.

That evening a number of people from the neighborhood were invited to meet me. My host took me up to the guests to present me, at last stopping before one the sight of whom made me catch my breath—the lady I had kissed in the morning. "She fixed a pair of black eyes upon me for a moment, as women do at making a new acquaintance, then began to chat with me. At first I could find nothing to say and when I succeeded spoiled it by stammering. But her manner was so charming that she soon put me at my ease. "Do you reside near by?" I asked. "In the adjoining place."

"Indeed, I took a glance at your premises this morning through a break in the hedge. The grounds are very attractive."

"We think so. I am out of doors nearly all day in summer. I was dancing till 2 o'clock this morning. Papa won't allow any of us to be absent from the breakfast table, so I am obliged to make up my sleep later. This morning I had a splendid nap in the summer house."

"(Thank heaven," I muttered to myself, "she was really sound asleep!")

"In the summer house?"

"Yes, and I had such a singular dream, or rather nightmare."

"Indeed."

"I dreamed that a horrid little man, with hair and eyes black as a coal and a red beard, came to the summer house."

"That's a singular combination," I remarked, inwardly alarmed.

"Such things are always singular in dreams. He stood for a moment on the steps, then came into the house. I couldn't cry out—you know people in nightmare never can cry out, though they try ever so hard—and he stood there looking at me with his fiendish green eyes."

"I thought you said his eyes were black."

"Did I? Well, they were green. Then he bent over me so close that I could feel the tip of his ugly white beard brushing my cheek."

"You mean his red beard."

"No; it was white—I said white. Then, stooping lower and lower, while I felt every moment that I should die of fright, at last he kissed me."

"What did you do?"

"Do? I tried to cry out, but could only gasp."

"But people in nightmare in attempting to cry out make a sound."

"So did I."

"No, you didn't. You lay still as a mouse."

The girl burst into a merry laugh. She laughed and laughed till it seemed she would never cease laughing, while I turned red, white, all conceivable colors, like the beard of the man in the dream.

"What are you laughing at?" I asked at last.

"How did you know that I didn't make any sound?"

"I see our host coming this way," I replied, red as a beet. "I think he must be the fool killer coming to take me."

As I was dragged away to be introduced to other guests the girl called, still laughing:

"I receive calls in the 222 West house."

I called the next morning and found the lady—awake.

DISAPPEARED An Ordinance.

This story was told me by a detective:

"A young Italian girl disappeared. Her character was beyond reproach. On questioning those most intimate with her we learned that much unkindness of feeling had arisen between her various suitors. Such a girl would naturally inspire jealousy, but there was one person in particular whose feelings had once found expression in the most bitter and intense animosity toward the rest, but it was only once that he suffered himself to become so far forgetful of his interests."

"Naturally he was taciturn and repelled familiarity. Although young and strikingly handsome, it was said the girl had conceived for this man the most intense repugnance. He had a dark, sinister look, a sort of subtle, secret intelligence about him, strangely at variance with her free and open character. She had rejected his suit, but he had sworn yet to possess her. He left her presence with a half uttered threat and a look that froze her blood."

"That night she disappeared. Of course our suspicious fell upon the man. The facts, however, here detailed were not ascertained without patient research and careful investigation, but by slow degrees we did discover them and watched our man from that hour with incessant scrutiny. At certain hours, however, in the day he left his place of business, and, although we invariably attempted to follow him, we were as invariably baffled. In some of the numerous streets that shoot out in every direction in that part of the city we lost him. Sometimes it was in an alleyway, sometimes by ascending a flight of stairs, sometimes by entering a private residence, that we lost him, but in some way he invariably eluded our vigilance. You may reasonably conclude that this neither suited Mr. I nor myself. We determined we would not be cheated the next time. One of these absences occurred about 10 o'clock every night."

"It was near that time then, and we watched the Italian with an eagerness and intensity doubly whetted by repeated disappointment. A drizzling rain was falling, and the lamps shone along the dark streets feebly. It suited us exactly. The man came out soon and started in the direction he invariably took. We hung on his path like shadows. His iron heel rang on the pavement. Our feet fell softly and lightly. Up one street and down another the chase led for more than an hour. At last he paused before a large brick building. It was an old Spanish house and looked dark and grand enough to be a castle or bastille. Its shutters were closed, and no ray of light shone from the heavily draped windows. The man paused and looked around before he inserted the key and turned the lock. We crouched low to the walls as he did so, but the door had barely swung on its hinges before we sprang upon him. The struggle was fierce, but brief. He could not contend with two men, either of whom was stronger than himself."

"We believed we should find the girl here, and our suspicions were correct. We did find her, a prisoner, guarded by an old quadron woman."

"When she saw us and knew we had come to release her, there was a sudden lighting up of her face, a vivid gleam of pleasure, a scream of delight but as suddenly it darkened in a look of terror, wild with pain. She implored us to leave her. She talked wildly, her eyes fixed fearfully on the man, while he looked on her with a cold, sullen sneer. I told her it was impossible to leave her; that we must take her to her parents. I told her grief and despair. It was plain to see that each word pierced her with a pang keener than the thrust of a dagger. Her face was deathly pale, her very lips whitened in agony. She tried to speak, and as she did so the man raised his finger and shook it at her warningly. The presence of the archfiend could not have alarmed her more. She pleaded again with a wild, passionate entreaty, full of terror, full of anguish, we could neither appreciate nor understand."

"She struggled as I lifted her into the carriage Mr. I. had called, but suddenly became quiet and still. I drove rapidly to her home, while Mr. I. carried the prisoner to the station."

"All the way she did not stir. She had fainted and lay pallid and still on the cushions. As we lifted her from the carriage and conveyed her into the house she opened her eyes, but there was no light in their glance. Her reason had fled. The girl was a maniac."

"Months rolled by, a year had come and gone, but the mystery of the strange occurrence only deepened."

"Day by day the hectic flush crept upon the young girl's cheek, and day by day her footsteps pressed closer to the brink of the still waters whose icy currents have the shadowy land. Her reason wrecked, her hopes in life had fled, but no word ever passed her lips to tell the secret that was wearing soul and brain away."

"At last she sickened mortally. Over her couch kind friends bent hopelessly, but before the spark of life went out her reason returned. It was then her secret was revealed. She had become the Italian's wife. To escape a fate far worse she had yielded to a compulsory marriage."

Have of Responsibility.

The funniest case of absentmindedness was one that happened in St. Louis the other day. A pale, nervous looking young fellow came into the grocery with his baby on one arm and the coal oil can on the other. He set the can on the counter and said, "Sir, there a moment, dear." Then, holding the baby to the dazed clerk, he said, "A gallon of kerosene in this, please."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Ten Years of Blessed Work and Glorious Victories.

Paine's Celery Compound

Has Brought Health and New Life to the Sick and Diseased in Every Part of the Civilized World.

For the last ten years the work of Paine's Celery Compound has been a blessed and cheering one to men and women of every rank in society. In no one case has the great medicine failed to benefit, and where it has been used promptly, it has in every case brought a cure.

The blessed results that spring from the use of Paine's Celery Compound are not confined to this land of ours. The great life giving medicine has been sent to every quarter of the civilized world, and has cured the sick, restored the weak and depressed to health and strength, and caused tens of thousands to live who failed to find health in worthless prescriptions, sarsaparillas, nervines, and pills.

Paine's Celery Compound, that we would direct the attention of every man and woman suffering from weakness, general debility, rheumatism, neuralgia, heart trouble, dyspepsia, anemia, blood diseases, liver complaint and kidney trouble. Thousands of grateful letters have poured in testifying to wonderful and permanent cures.

It is foolish and criminal to delay the use of such a disease banisher, when others have so clearly demonstrated its value; when many of your friends and neighbors have been made well by its use. The health giving virtues are so eminently great that the ablest physicians are prescribing Paine's Celery Compound daily for the sick.

If you are weak physically, in the grasp of disease, or simply feeling out-of-sorts, irritable, sleepless, or despondent, try one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and note well the magical effects.

MEETING

OF THOSE WHO ARE INTERESTED IN PROPOSED ROAD.

Held Monday Night in Office of A. A. Stasel—The Route of Road Discussed.

A meeting of the promoters of the new electric road from Newark to Mt. Vernon via Wilkins Run, Purty, Martinsburg and Gambier, was held in the office of A. A. Stasel on South Third street, on Monday evening for the purpose of taking steps to have the route of the proposed road surveyed and also of making an estimate of the cost of constructing the road. Dr. J. F. Shrontz, Leander Hayes and John W. Baird of Martinsburg, together with a number of residents of Mt. Vernon and Newark were present at the meeting which was presided over by a attorney G. C. Daugherty, while Mr. W. A. Veach acted as Secretary.

The feasibility of the road was discussed at length by Dr. Shrontz and Leander Hayes of Martinsburg, and Dr. W. Crayton, O. C. Larason, J. A. C. Cote, William Allen Veach and others of this city.

A committee of five was appointed to act with a similar committee from Mt. Vernon and the intermediate points, to secure right of way, franchise, etc. The speakers were all of the opinion that this road would be the best paying road of any in the country. The proposed road will run near the famous "Caves" southeast of Mt. Vernon, which are already noted all over the country. There is also a project on foot to connect this line just south of Martinsburg to Bladensburg, past the Innis church, Warsaw and on to Coshocton.

The matter was talked over at considerable length and the general consensus of opinion was that the road would soon be a reality. The meeting adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.

A new device for use with telephones has been patented in Sydney. It is a clockwork mechanism, with a dial that registers the time occupied in speaking. The hand of the dial works only when the receiver is taken from the hook.

HOMER GAS

MAY BE PIPED TO MARION, OHIO, THIS SPRING.

Quite Probable That Council Will Grant Franchise—New Wells of Mt. Vernon Gas Company.

The Marion, Ohio, Star says that William H. Thompson of Mt. Vernon, attorney for the Treat-Crawford Natural Gas Company, was in that city last Friday for the purpose of asking the members of the city council to grant a franchise for supplying the city with natural gas. Mr. Thompson stated that should the contract be secured the gas would be piped from the Homer field. It is quite probable that the Marion council will grant the franchise.

Mt. Vernon, O., March 4. The drillers at the Miller well, two miles west of Brandon, went through the crust sand Saturday at a depth of between 2200 and 2300 feet. It is said that the well shows up very favorably. Gas in small volume was struck in the Berea grit at the infirmity well Saturday. The drillers have yet to go about 1000 at this well, however.

TOLD IN NEWARK

Its the Evidence of Newark People Published in Newark Papers that Has Made Such a Reputation for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Standing clear and distinct, marking the difference, the superior merit, the adaptability to present day ailments is the volume of local testimony for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. Its so different to the ordinary remedies referring to cures made at distant points which it is hard to verify. There is a reason, for Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills commanding home evidence wherever they are known—it is their wonderful influence in bringing up the standard of Nerve Force.

Mrs. L. DeVine of No. 152 Locust street, Newark, Ohio, says—I was greatly troubled with nervousness—could not sleep and was generally run down. I was advised to take Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got a box at Bricker's City Drug Store and found them an excellent medicine and I can recommend them to others as safe and sure.

MADISON TOWNSHIP.

The Democrats of Madison township will hold their primary election Saturday, March 15, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

F. S. BAKER, Committeeman.

Basket Ball.

All lovers of basket ball will be treated to a game at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, Wednesday night, March 5th, that will be beyond doubt the most hotly contested, yet with the true basket ball spirit, that has ever been seen in Newark. It will be a game between the infants of the Y. M. C. A. and the Shamrocks of Gant's Park, Zanesville.

The infants, though they are very light in weight and are a young team, are able with their very fine physical training to hold full grown teams down and make them blush a very perceptible red. The Shamrocks, though a much heavier team, play a clean and honest game.

The boys will appreciate the patronage and support of their friends, as the cost to bring a team of their standing is no small item.

The line-up of the infants: L. F. Leachman; R. F. Herman or Lynn; Center, Rutter; L. G. Cripps; R. G. Moore.

MY FELLOW TRAMPER

[Original.]

During the season of the White (Zan's) first visit to Paris I was walking through Europe. I had tramped through Switzerland and climbed the Alps and was now about to descend, intending to make my way to Paris to be present at the great reception.

Pausing to take a last view from a great height, I sat down on the ground and fell to dreaming. I was recalled to myself by a soft voice behind me asking in French:

"Can you tell me, sir, how far it is to Montbard?"

I looked up expecting to see a woman. Instead the person who had addressed me was a young fellow apparently about twenty, though there was not a sign of a hair on his face, and he might have been younger or older.

"Montbard? There is Montbard directly north of us. You can't distinguish the place, for it is twenty-five miles from us in a direct line."

"So far?" with an expression of disappointment.

"I am going that way. Rest awhile, and I will go with you."

The young man sat down beside me, and we chatted for half an hour. He was one of the most attractive persons I ever met. There was so much enthusiasm in him. Everything in which he took an interest he took a deep interest. To one who has become blasé and finds most other people so, such a one is very refreshing. Besides, he was very intelligent and displayed considerable learning. One thing about him amused me. He was very illogical. Everything was felt; nothing was reasoned. At least his reasons were always absurd. For instance, he expressed a firm belief in the divine right of kings because this right was necessary as a basis for their authority.

We started down the declivity, but had not gone far before we were overtaken by a diligence, and my young man got aboard. I continued to tramp, but I confess the rest of the journey seemed dull and uninteresting.

The next evening I reached Montbard, where I found railway transportation to Paris, but was obliged to wait several hours before getting a train. Going into a cafe to get something to eat, I seated myself at a table and was looking over the menu when a familiar voice asked, "What will monsieur have?" The last time I had heard that voice was when my tramping companion bade me adieu before boarding the diligence. Looking up, I saw a waitress standing beside me, and her face was as much like the tramp as the voice. She was looking down upon me with no sign of recognition, and for the moment I considered the likeness a mere coincidence. I gave her an order for supper, but before leaving the cafe I made up my mind that I was not mistaken—the waitress was really my companion of the day before.

A week later while in Paris, where I had many friends, I attended a reception at the house of a prominent American banker, who then lived near the Bois de Boulogne. The czar had arrived, and all Paris was talking about him. As I entered the drawing room I heard a lady, whose back was toward me, say in tones that were familiar:

"Without authority from heaven he would have no more right to rule than you or I."

Moving to a position where I could catch a view of her face, I saw—my tramping companion, the waitress of Montbard.

"Who is that lady?" I asked of my host as soon as I could find him.

"The Countess Nicholasowsky."

"A Poland?"

"Yes."

"Please present me."

The countess received me graciously, but without the slightest sign of recognition. I was fully aware that any reference to my former acquaintance would not meet with favor and if persisted in would be resented. I therefore refrained from mentioning either of our meetings, but led the conversation into the same channels as when we were resting on the Alps. Every topic she handled differently from her treatment of it at that time, but with even greater brilliancy. When I begged for permission to call upon her, she said, "I am very sorry, but I leave Paris tomorrow at dawn."

I returned to America by steamer from Cherbourg. I am troubled with seasickness and kept my room till the voyage was half finished. Then one day, the weather being delightful and the sea smooth, I took my steamer chair and my rug to the deck. I had scarcely emerged from the companionway when I was startled at seeing seated before me my tramping friend of the Alps, the waitress of Montbard, the Countess Nicholasowsky. I had at least a right to recognize the last named personage and exclaimed:

"Why, countess?"

"My words were met by a cold stare."

"You are mistaken, sir," she said in tolerable English. "You address Mme. Bourdaloue of Southampton."

I apologized and passed on. The lady did not come on deck again during the voyage, but when we were docked I took a position where I could see her as she went ashore. Her maid first went on to the dock, walked back and forth with her eyes well open, then made a sign, whereupon the mistress followed.

Curiosity led me to Pinkerton's to make inquiries. They told me that they had been advised of the coming of the Countess Nicholasowsky, a Polish nihilist, but too late. A plot had been discovered to assassinate the czar on his way to Paris, but had failed. The countess was implicated.

JOHN TURNER WYETH.

DR. O. P. SOOK.

Dear Sir:

We are well aware that there is an existing prejudice with many physicians against the prescribing of proprietary medicines, yet there is no just cause for this when it can be shown that a certain proprietary article is more speedy and efficient in the accomplishment of the result desired than other prescriptions.

A happier combination of ingredients was never discovered than that used in Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and many physicians recognizing this fact, regularly prescribe it for diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation, or the distressing sickness so common among women, and uniformly with the greatest success.

We call to mind an instance of a doctor in Wilkesbarre, Pa., who had as a patient the president of the city council. He was a physical wreck from rheumatism. He was given all manner of prescriptions and all to no purpose. Finally on his own responsibility, the patient took a bottle of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it did him worlds of good, and he continued its use until cured. His physician, being a sensible man, realized that what his patients wanted was help, and whenever any one came to him after that suffering with Rheumatism he prescribed Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy with the happiest results. This is but one of many similar instances, and all goes to show that you can prescribe a harmless and effective remedy that has thousands of cures to its credit, which prove beyond question its sterling worth.

If you wish it we will send you or any of your patients or friends a sample bottle to try if they will send us their names.

Yours truly,
Dr. David Kennedy Corporation,
Rondout, N. Y.

The New York Legislature, in both houses, has passed the bill permitting the Pennsylvania railroad to construct its tunnel under the North and East Rivers to connect New York with its great trunk line. The bill was amended to protect the interests of the city. ## FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The Friese Artistic.

Ideas for friezes that look well above the plate rail or brace-burne shelf are growing more and more bizarre and not less effective.

A row of old prints framed in black above the dining room plate rail is an always pretty notion, but not an inexpensive one. Posters look well, but they have become too banal for most tastes.

Japanese water colors against a background of matting are very pleasing, and if the knickknacks on the shelf below are of oriental character the scheme is apt to be particularly successful.

A line of blue, red and white and blue china plates against a freeze of deep yellow paper gives a striking note of novelty to a recently furnished dining room.

A room paneled two-thirds of the way from floor to ceiling with very dark oak has a freeze of lettuce green paper and dark blue plates and pottery, and bits of old brass and copper are placed on the shelf and on the wall above it.

The Screen Decorative.

There is something so decorative about a screen, apart from its usefulness, that a really well furnished room is hardly considered complete without one. The designs are many, but the selection has to be made with a due regard to surroundings—that is to say, the screen must seem to belong to the rest of the furniture. It must be the same in character and not have the appearance of an odd piece. The folding screens, with panels of rich silk, are as a rule well adapted for the drawing room, or if the furnishing is Chippendale or Sheraton then the frames are made in those designs, the upper part having clear glass panels, while the coloring of the silk in the lower part must tone with the walls and hangings of the room. French screens, such as those of the Louis XV. and XVI. periods, with mahogany or mahogany and gilt finely carved frames and clear glass panels in shaped upper parts, are particularly beautiful, yet only suitable for rooms in those styles.—Philadelphia Record.

Will Prevent Many a Burn.

Reaching into an oven after a pie or roast is the cause of many of the painful burns from which the housewife suffers, and no matter how careful she is, the accident will happen at intervals. To reduce this danger to a minimum and at the same time afford the cook the opportunity to inspect the baking with ease Pembroke D. Hutton of Philadelphia has contrived the automatic shelf slide for ovens shown in the accompanying drawing. The usual shelf is retained, and the improvement consists in the pivoted bar and bracket attached to the inner side of the swinging door. The inner end of the bar is attached to a bolt near the center of the shelf, and a pull on the door withdraws the shelf at the same time, the flat bar underneath also serving as a partial support for the weight above. Thus it is easy to baste and season a fowl or roast, or the pan may be lifted vertically from the shelf after a secure grip has been obtained on the handles, and there is small chance of a burn, as it is unnecessary to thrust the hands into the oven at all.

Leather and Ebony.

Ebony with silver or gilt beading is a favorite finish for fancy articles this season. Entire sets for dressing and writing tables are shown and, except for their rather mourning effect, are very handsome. For the writing table or desk, however, leather seems to take front rank. Writing tables fitted out to the last possible need in leather articles of one shade are the vogue of the moment. In a bookseller's window were counted recently sixty-seven articles that might find a place on the library table, each of which was covered in a rich dark blue leather nearly the shade known as "Xale blue." A similar display could be made in sealing wax, red and forest green, and many of the articles are reproduced for a lady's morning room in white leather.

Ventilating Sleeping Rooms.

"Every sleeping room," says a lecturer on house building, "should have a fireplace or a ventilating flue of fifty square inches area. The smaller the room the more important this becomes. The neglect of this precaution, which is common in apartment houses, is a serious matter and will not be without an injurious effect upon the health of the community." It is on these practical points that the woman electing to build a house this spring should inform herself.

Make Your Own Flavoring.

You can make a better lemon or orange extract than you can buy if you will peel the fruit thin, round and round as you peel an apple, taking none of the inside skin; then put in a glass jar and cover with alcohol, or you may simply chop the peel very fine, add twice its bulk in white sugar and keep in a close fitting jar. A teaspoonful of this will flavor cake or pudding very nicely. I tried pineapple the same way and found that it was excellent.

If you hit your thumb with a hammer, you rub on some soothing, healing remedy, wrap it up and let Nature do the rest. That's just exactly what you ought to do for Rheumatism. ## DISPUTE

LED TO AN AFFRAY MONDAY AT GRANVILLE.

James Baker Was Arrested for Assault on Samuel Everett—Released on Bail.

Granville, O., March 4.—An affray that came near resulting in a bloody tragedy occurred at this place on Monday in Norman Gregory's place, and the victim is now lying in a very serious condition. Mr. Samuel Everett, one of the oldest and best known residents of this vicinity, and Norman Gregory had been in Newark during the day, and upon their return Mr. Everett accompanied Gregory to his home.

While there, James Baker, a well known young farmer, came into the place, and entered into conversation with Mr. Everett, which finally terminated in a dispute over a road tax receipt for two dollars. Mr. Everett is the road supervisor and claimed that Baker owed two dollars. Mr. Baker called Mr. Everett a liar, when the latter called him an ugly name.

Baker picked up a large stone that was lying near and threw it at Everett, striking him on the head and knocking him down.

After he had knocked him down he jumped on him, kicking him in the head and otherwise badly injuring him. Mr. Everett at once swore out a warrant for the arrest of Baker, charging him with assault with intent to kill. Baker was taken before Squire Sayres and gave bond for his appearance this morning in the sum of $300.

ODD FELLOWS

DEGREE WORK WITNESSED BY A LARGE NUMBER.

Conferring of Degrees on Six Candidates Was Followed Monday Night by Nice Lunch.

Odd Fellowship in Newark is experiencing quite a boom. During the past several months, especially, has the interest in Odd Fellowship in this city been most marked. Every member has put his shoulder to the wheel as true Odd Fellows should, and the result can be easily seen. Newark Lodge, although the youngest lodge in the city, has had a phenomenal growth. Of late they have not only been securing a large number of new members, but have made it a rule to get nothing but the best timber, and the order as a whole, in Newark, can proudly say that it is made up of the best men the city affords.

On Monday evening a grand meeting was held at the beautiful Odd Fellows Hall by the members of Newark and Olive Branch lodges of Odd Fellows, which was indeed a red letter occasion in the history of the order in Newark.

The members of Newark Lodge, No. 623, had extended an invitation to the members of Olive Branch lodge, No. 34 to join with them in conferring the degree on a number of candidates. The result was that the invitation was accepted, each lodge agreeing to furnish three candidates upon whom the third degree was to be conferred.

When the meeting was called to order, there was one of the largest assemblages of Odd Fellows in the hall that has been seen there for years. All the members of the splendid Odd Fellows degree staff were present, and conferred the third degree upon the six candidates in a most impressive manner. The staff is well drilled and deserves much praise for the impressive manner in which they do their work.

After the work a sumptuous banquet was partaken of, which was served by the wives of the members of the two lodges, brief addresses were made by Donaldson Bros., 35 South Second street. 3-4-d3t

Schindel, the latter of whom was one of the six candidates who received the third degree.

Altogether the meeting was one of the best ever held in Newark, and will do the order much good.
